

Abstract

This patent relates to novel playing cards and games that can be played with those cards. The novel cards have the suit on one side but not the card's value and the card's value and the card's suit on the other side. Thus, when they cards are dealt, the player will know the suit of some or all the cards in his hand, but will not know their values. When the player selects a card it will display both the card's suit and the card's value.

CLEAN COPY OF ABSTRACT

This patent relates to novel playing cards and games that can be played with those cards. The novel cards have the suit on one side but not the card's value and the card's value and the card's suit on the other side. Thus, when the cards are dealt, the player will know the suit of some or all the cards in his hand, but will not know their values. When the player selects a card it will display both the card's suit and the card's value.